

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements.....	5
Contents	7
1. Introduction.....	11
1.1 Overview of key literature and ideas	14
1.2 Outline of arguments.....	18
2. Illustrating the normative function of health: UK stem cell policies.....	25
2.1 Embryonic research: legislation and regulation	28
2.2 Policy documents on embryonic stem cell research	31
2.2.1 The 1984 Warnock Report	32
2.2.2 The 1998 HFEA/HGAC Consultation document.....	34
2.2.3 The 2000 Chief Medical Officer’s Report.....	36
2.2.4 The 2002 HoL Select Committee Report	39
2.2.5 Concluding remarks.....	41
3. Conceptualising health (1): Early philosophical and theological reflections	43
3.1 Health, well-being, and the role of reason: Galen of Pergamon	46
3.1.1 Logic and medical epistemology	47
3.1.2 Functional view of body and soul	48
3.1.3 Health as metabolic balance	50
3.1.4 Concluding remarks.....	52
3.2 Contextualising patristic writers	54
3.2.1 The Gospel narratives: physical health and the coming kingdom...55	55
3.2.2 Von Harnack: Christianity – a medical religion?	59
3.3 Natural medicine and demonic powers: Tatian.....	61
3.3.1 Hierarchical union of matter, soul, and the divine spirit	62
3.3.2 Demonic involvement in diseases and medicinal drugs.....	64
3.3.3 Concluding remarks.....	65
3.4 Hierarchy of physical and spiritual health: Tertullian.....	67
3.4.1 On disease causes: natural, demonic, and spiritual	68
3.4.2 Modes of healing: natural, supernatural, and sacramental	69
3.4.3 Concluding remarks.....	72
3.5 Medical practice and charity: Basil the Great	74
3.5.1 Natural cause and exhortative purpose of disease	76
3.5.2 Science and art of medicine in the context of salvation	77
3.5.3 The good life, medical care, and the first hospital.....	81
3.5.4 Concluding remarks.....	84

4. Conceptualising health (2): Augustine on health and healing	89
4.1 Creation and Creator	91
4.1.1 The Creator	92
4.1.2 Creatio-ex-nihilo.....	93
4.1.3 Order of existence.....	94
4.1.4 Goodness of creation	95
4.2 The material body	98
4.2.1 The body in union with the soul	98
4.2.2 Goodness and fallen-ness of the body	101
4.3 The human soul	103
4.3.1 Imagining the soul and the image of God	104
4.3.2 The soul and the reformation of the imago	107
4.3.3 Concluding remarks.....	110
4.4 Physical disease and human sinfulness	112
4.4.1 Disease as divine punishment.....	113
4.4.2 Physical suffering and redemption	116
4.5 Health of the body, divine, and medical healing.....	121
4.5.1 The body and divine healing	121
4.5.2 The body and medical healing.....	124
4.6 Health of soul in the context of redemption.....	125
4.6.1 Health of the soul as higher good	126
4.6.2 Baptism, scripture and the healing of the soul	128
4.6.3 Concluding remarks.....	130
5. Conceptualising health (3): The Anglo-American philosophical debate.....	133
5.1 Overview of the Anglo-American health debate	136
5.2 Health and bodily functions: Christopher Boorse.....	140
5.2.1 Functional design of the body	141
5.2.2 Health as biostatistical normality	142
5.2.3 Concluding remarks.....	143
5.3 Cultural values and health: H. Tristram Engelhardt.....	146
5.3.1 Case study: the disease of masturbation	147
5.3.2 Translation of value judgements into medical concepts.....	149
5.3.3 Concluding remarks.....	150
5.4 Health and the individual agent: Lennart Nordenfelt.....	153
5.4.1 Goal-directed human agency and health	153
5.4.2 Vital goals, individual happiness, and health	155
5.4.3 Concluding remarks.....	156

6. Conclusions for contemporary medicine	159
6.1 Contemporary Christian voices on health and healing	160
6.1.1 Health and the individual-social dimension of life: Karl Barth.....	160
6.1.2 Health and medicine in pursuit of salvation: Orthodox theology..	165
6.1.3 Relationship of theology and medicine: Stanley Hauerwas	170
6.2 Understanding of health in a contemporary context	177
6.2.1 Health from within the body-soul union	178
6.2.2 The good of the body and the term repair	182
6.2.3 The value of health and the good of human life.....	186
6.2.4 The good of health – an imperative for medicine?.....	191
6.3 Concluding remarks	193
 Selected Bibliography.....	 195
Index	207