

CONTENTS

Tetsu Sakurai Preface . . . . .	7
Makoto Usami Introduction . . . . .	9
PART 1 CONDITIONALITY OF HUMAN RIGHTS
David Miller Are Human Rights Conditional? . . . . .	17
Tetsu Sakurai Human Rights and International Society . . . . .	35
Katsu Tomisawa Human Rights as Reciprocity . . . . .	45
Hirohide Takikawa Are Human Rights Forfeitable? . . . . .	55
PART 2 GLOBAL JUSTICE AND NATIONAL RESPONSIBILITY
Tatsuo Inoue Miller's Two Souls: What Does Their "Cohabitation" End in? . . . . .	71
Ko Hasegawa Getting through National Responsibility toward Global Justice. . . . .	81
Fumihiko Ishiyama National Responsibility: What Special Relevance Does It Have to the World As It Is? . . . . .	89
Yuko Kamishima Needs, Capabilities and Global Justice. . . . .	97

PART 3 CAPITALISM, CULTURE AND COSMOPOLITANISMYasubiko Itoh*

Global Capitalism and Global Justice. . . . . 109

Teruhisa Se

The Prerequisites of Cross-Cultural Dialogue on Human Rights. . . . . 117

Seiko Urayama

On Weak Cosmopolitanism. . . . . 131

Chikako Endo

Citizenship, Nationality and Collective Responsibility . . . . . 139

PART 4 RESPONSEDavid Miller*

Human Rights and Global Justice: A Response . . . . . 153

List of Contributors . . . . . 165